The early summer Longhorn events calendar has been dominated by Shows and once again members are producing and showing tremendous cattle that are a real credit to the breed. Good entries have been seen at many of the Shows and our panel of judges have been pleased with the quality of the stock they have had in front of them.

There were genuine looks of fear in the eyes of many showmen from other breeds during this year's Royal Show when Blackbrook Philosopher won Breed Champion and in turn stepped up for the Beef Interbreed. Unfortunately the judges of both the Beef Interbreed and the Burke (Pairs) Trophy didn't think likewise, but it is especially gratifying when breeders from other breeds think that the Longhorns are mounting a serious challenge and are no longer considered 'also-rans'.

The next major event in the calendar is the Society's National Show and Sale at Stoneleigh Park on 14 and 15 August. The Show will take place on Friday 14 and for the first time we are holding young handlers classes. There's a meal and entertainment on Friday night and then a parade on Saturday morning before the sale. With two hotels and plenty of caravan and camping facilities why not come and stay over?

The annual Journal is starting to be put together ready for publication early in 2010. Advertising rates and deadlines are included in the newsletter. The Journal continues to be a good way to advertise your herd and many new breeders have started herds having picked up a Journal at a show or event so start to think about your ad now!

Updating the Rural Land Register

In June this year, the RPA started a nationwide roll-out of updated mapping information for the Rural Land Register, DEFRA's central database of land parcels in England. The RLR currently uses the OS 2001 survey data. As this is now out of date, RPA is updating this to use the 2008 version. During the summer, RPA will be sending new maps to nearly 120,000 Single Payment Scheme and RDP claimants throughout England. Every farmer who receives a new map pack is being urged to check it carefully as, once agreed, this new information will be used for future scheme payments, to pre-print SPS 2010 forms and used for any farm inspections. For further information contact the RLR customer service helpline 0845 603 7777 or go to the website www.rpa.gov.uk/rlr

CATTLE NEMATODES

Lungworm disease typically occurs from June/July onward. An increased incidence of lungworm disease has been associated with wet summers. However, thundershowers following a dry spell can break down faecal pats and make larvae available to grazing stock, leading to a local increase in disease incidence.

Dose and move strategies or suppressive regimes that do not last the whole grazing season can still allow lungworm disease to occur late in the season, especially if conditions are wet, and prompt treatment is needed. Animals destined to be breeding replacements, and perhaps suckled calves from farms with a history of lungworm disease, are best protected by vaccination.

Suppressive regimes for the control of ostertagiasis (e.g. in set-stocked calves vaccinated against lungworm) can end around mid-July when pasture larval infectivity will have substantially died off.

LIVER FLUKE

Winter infection of snails

High levels of fluke infection last year combined with the wet autumn mean that relatively large numbers of fluke-infected snails may have overwintered. Wet May conditions in Scotland, Northern Ireland and north-west England, combined with mean monthly temperatures of around 10 oC or more, may have allowed some of this infection onto the pasture. Other areas have generally been dry, although contamination of the pasture with metacercariae can occur in any region in locally wet areas, such as around ditches etc. A July triclabendazole treatment to address this wave of infection may be indicated in high-risk areas, or at least increased vigilance in monitoring for the occurrence of acute fluke cases. This will be clearer after the regional Mt figures for June are known, and the fluke forecast for the winter infection of snails will be available with the August forecast at www.nadis.org.uk from early July.

Summer infection of snails

Similarly, May temperatures will have allowed the development of fluke eggs and the start of mud snail activity given suitable ground moisture. Dry conditions across the south and east mean that habitats in which this can occur may not be extensive. A high level of environmental contamination with metacercariae is expected to be present in many areas this year due to increased egg deposition, which is itself the effect of two consecutive wet summers. Rainfall patterns in June, July and August will be important in determining the incidence of fluke this year. A forecast will be produced at the end of August.

CHANGE OF DATE

Welsh Black Cattle Society Open Days, 18 & 19 September 2009

The Welsh Black Cattle Society have kindly extended an invitation to members of the Longhorn Cattle Society to take part in a joint event on 18 and 19 September.

On Friday 18 September the event starts at Jonathon and Debbie Pugh's farm Ty Talgarth, Nantymoel, Bridgend, Glamorgan, CF32 7NR. Jonathon is the Council member for Glamorgan for the Welsh Black Cattle Society and he and his family farm the highest grazing land in the county at 1750ft. They have recently diversified to open their own farm butchery known as 'Ty Talgarth Organic Beef'. To add the finish touch the Treorchy Male Voice Choir will greet visitors on arrival at Ty Talgarth. The visit commences at 2pm.

On Saturday 19 September the visit will be to Frank Sutton's Parc Grace Dieu herd at The Hendre, Monmouthshire. Frank is Welsh Black Council member for Monmouthshire as well as being a Council member for the Longhorn Cattle Society. There will be an opportunity to see the Welsh Black and Longhorn herds, as well as the herd of North American Bison followed by a barbeque. Again, the visit will commence at 2pm
